A bankrupt government may sound like a difficult prospect, but it's something John Bullock is looking forward to. "My biggest worry over the last few years, bigger than any other, was that the government would not be able to pay its bills," he said. "Now that the government is bankrupt, I can sleep at night." Bullock, president of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, is speaking at a press conference on May 30 in the Queen's Hotel in Kitchener. "I don't know what they try to do with money," he said. "I don't know what they try to do with money." Bullock is speaking at a press conference on May 30 in the Queen's Hotel in Kitchener. "I don't know what they try to do with money," he said. "I don't know what they try to do with money."

Grads join elite group

By John Sweeney

For most of the 3,000 eligible graduates in this year's college and university, receiving their diplomas will mean the end of their secondary learning.

But graduates in elite programs at just six elite schools—Cornell, Stanford, Harvard, Princeton, MIT, and Johns Hopkins—have a different view of the diploma.

At these schools, the diploma is a ticket to ride, not a destination. It's a ticket to ride to a place where the graduates will continue to learn, to a place where they will be challenged to learn more.

Conestoga shows girls other career possibilities

By John Sweeney

When Conestoga's 100 girls' varsity basketball team was named a state champion in 1988, it was a first for the school.

The team, called Leadership in Tomorrow, showed 100 girls that there were other career possibilities in the world.

The program was organized by Conestoga College in cooperation with the Waterloo County School Board. It was a first for the school.
